

What's Missing in Most Policy Checking Solutions?

Learn about the top barriers to delivering accurate policies to clients

Is a Policy Check Enough?

Today's insurance customers expect a policy to be delivered quickly and accurately. Meeting this expectation can be a challenge, even for high-performing agencies.

The policy checking process can be time-consuming, and without the right people and technology, errors create a significant risk. ReSource Pro data indicates that the average insurance policy has nine errors.

How can insurance agencies improve accuracy, speed, and, ultimately, the customer experience?

A deep dive into the post-bind process at insurance agencies across the U.S. suggests that it's the policy review, not the policy checking, that tends to create the most significant backlog for account managers.

Without an effective review process, errors are not fixed, leaving your agency open to E&O risk and reputational damage.

Your policy check is only as good as the review, yet few solutions on the market effectively address this vital step. What's more, they frequently suffer the following shortfalls, leading to low accuracy, rework, and other complications:

- Lack of insurance experts
- No agency management system integration
- Little real-time oversight of the post-bind process

YOUR POLICY CHECK IS ONLY AS GOOD AS THE REVIEW.

WHAT'S NEEDED TO DELIVER AN ACCURATE POLICY

Transparency into the post-bind process

Expert-level checking accuracy of 99% or higher

Faster, more efficient policy review and coordination

Integrated approach to automation with a human check for accuracy

Greater insight into business relationships

WHAT MOST POLICY CHECKING SOLUTIONS PROVIDE

Lack of visibility

Inconsistent or poor accuracy due to inexperience

Little to no support for review process

Automation with no customization or human check

No data analytics

Transform Your Post-Bind Processing Into a Strategic Advantage

To improve speed and accuracy, agencies need to rethink the whole post-bind process.

That's why we created Policy Insights 2.0, a tech-enabled policy checking solution that helps agencies not only deliver policies with 99.9% accuracy but reduce review time by 50% and even gain actionable insights into their business.

By leveraging automation technology and experienced insurance professionals, Policy Insights 2.0 not only avoids the common pitfalls that come with other solutions but offers support in the areas that impact the customer experience most.
